
ARCHITECTURE CENTRE NETWORK

Architecture Centre Network is the national development and advocacy organisation for architecture and built environment centres. Our remit is to improve public engagement with, and the quality of, architecture and the public realm. We facilitate joined up and cross sector working, knowledge sharing and collaboration, including internationally.

Architecture Centre Network brings together 22 independent organisations from across England and Northern Ireland who together offer a range of innovative activities across the architecture and built environment sector. We are a national network of local organisations with local expertise and knowledge; our impact collectively is our greatest strength.

Architecture centres help people make better places

They achieve this through:

Participation and consultation: facilitating engagement with architecture and the built environment for everyone, from a creative and independent perspective.

Advocacy and design support: making the case for, and providing, specialist advice to assist with the delivery of architecture and design of the highest quality.

Learning and skills development: developing greater understanding of architecture, design and the built environment for young people, communities and professionals.

“I believe that the network of architecture centres is vital to the long term quality of the nation’s built environment.”
Glenn Howells, Architect, Chair of MADE
